

3RD INTERNATIONAL AVIAN MYCOPLASMA CONFERENCE

- Scientific progress and the practical application of knowledge thrive on the exchange of information among researchers and enthusiasts within the same field. The symposium aims to foster this exchange, encouraging a two-way dialogue to address challenges and implement solutions in poultry-related research.
- In an ever-evolving landscape where legislation, husbandry practices, and vaccines have a significant impact on Mycoplasma related problems in poultry, this symposium serves as a pivotal platform. Our focus remains sharp on the biology, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of mycoplasma infections, particularly in the context of current scientific and technical advancements.
